Response to Amendment

The amendment filed 07/14/03 under 37 CFR 1.116 in reply to the final rejection will be entered upon the filing of an appeal, but is not deemed to place the application in condition for allowance. This amendment overcomes the objection of claim 40 and the rejection of claims 40-43 under 35 USC 112 second paragraph.

Response to Arguments

The arguments concerning the Levine reference and the 102 rejection at pages 7-8 filed on 07/14/03 have been considered.

The specification at page 5 line 32 to page 6 line 1 states "The cursor speed may be fixed at values v1 and v2. Alternatively, v1 and v2 may be the upper bounds of low-speed and high-speed ranges, the cursor speed being continuously variable through user-interface 106.". The specification at page 6 lines 7-11 describes the user or the application selecting v1 and v2. However, the claims do not claim how the predetermined time interval is selected nor do they claim how the pre-specified number is specified, thus, these terms are being given the broadest reasonable interpretation. Since the claims do not claim how the predetermined time interval and the pre-specified number are selected then any time after the initial application of force on the user interface by the user is a pre-selected point in time separating the low speed from the high speed region, especially since the claim does not specify how the speed is variable. The slope from A to C in Levine with intermediate point B meets the claimed limitations.

The argument that point B is dynamic is not persuasive because even a point B that is dependent upon the length of time force is applied to the user interface is preselected since a preselected algorithm has selected point B.
